DANGER—HOLIDAY AHEAD!

Spirits, both liquid and otherwise, seem to soar during the holiday season. So do traffic accident rates. Remember, if you drink don't drive. If you want to stay alive, Caution pays near holidays.

Be Careful—the life you save may be your own!

SAFE HOLIDAY DRIVING

It seems someone is always preaching "safety," to motorists in town and on the highway, but still there is always an accident, with death and injury the result. Now again we are facing the holiday season when students will be driving home from school and others will be coming home for the holidays from other towns. This together with the regular traffic on the highways will cause much sadness and sorrow at this season of the year when everyone should be their happiest, unless motorists are careful and considerate of the other fellow at all times. Drive slowly on the curves and at intersections and always dim your lights when approaching another car. If you follow these simple rules toward oncoming cars they will do likewise for you and you will both arrive safely at your destination, otherwise who knows what may be the result.

So once again we are doing just a little preaching where we think it will do the most good for the most people.

BULK OF U.S. FOOD ITEMS LIKELY TO ESCAPE PRICE LIDS

Washington. The bulk of the items in the family food market basket appeared likely today to escape government price controls for some time to come.

With the exception of some meats, rice and cottonseed oil, farm prices of food commodities are all still below price ceiling levels set by law.

For that reason, establishment of ceilings right now would have little or no effect on holding down food prices. In most cases, the ceilings would be above current market prices so far as farm products are concerned.

The law says ceilings on farm products must not be below parity or below prices which prevailed during the 30 days preceding start of the Korean war on June 25. Parity is a legal standard for measuring farm prices. It is declared by law to be equally fair to farmers and those who buy their products.

The latest government report on farm prices—issued Nov. 30—showed that only cotton, cottonseed, wool, flue-cured tobacco, beef cattle, veal calves, lambs, and rice were bringing prices above the minimum ceiling levels. More may be shown to be above the ceiling in the next report due Dec. 29.

Some products were bringing less than two-thirds of their minimum ceiling in the last report. They included potatoes, grain sorghums, sweet potatoes, grapefruit, and oranges.

Other commodities which were selling for less than minimum ceilings included wheat, corn, peanuts, butterfat, milk, barley, dry beans, oats, rye, soybeans, apples, chickens, eggs, hogs and turkeys.

The law permits establishment of ceilings on processed food products but not at levels which would hold farm prices below their minimum ceilings.

In other words a bread price ceiling could not be set which would keep wheat from reaching the minimum ceiling for the grain.

But it is possible that some processed food items are selling for enough to permit prices of their farm law materials to advance to ceiling levels. In such cases, the government could set ceilings on the prices of the finished items.

Latest reports show that the farmer gets an average of 50 cents from every dollar the housewife spends for food. The margin varies by items, however. The farmers' share ranges from about 18 per cent for bread to about 70 per cent for eggs and milk.

The government might justify ceilings on finished items processed from farm products selling at less than parity if it felt processors and distributors could get along with smaller margins. But on the whole, the government is expected to allow most farm products to reach their minimum ceiling levels before it imposes ceilings on their finished or processed products.

While most meat animals are selling for more than their minimum ceilings, there is a question whether the government will put meat under price control until it is ready to ration supplies.

Certainly, there is no disposition now to put ceilings on meat animals and meats at minimum ceilings. Agriculture Department officials say that to do so would discourage production when greater supplies are needed.

Meat ceilings without rationing might well see consumers closest to meat production and processing centers getting more than their share, with distant areas suffering shortages. This happened at times during the last war.

THREE MISSISSIPPI GIRLS IN COTTON MAID FINALS

Memphis, Tenn.—Twenty-one of the state's freshest beauties, representing 10 states, were listed as finalists in the 1951 Maid of Cotton contest.

The seven-member jury will take its final look at them Dec. 27. The winner will be announced Dec. 28. She will be the cotton industry's goodwill ambassador.

First she will spend a month in New York being fitted with an all-cotton wardrobe whipped up by top-flight fashion designers. The tour starts Feb. 5.

Picking the maid is an annual ceremony but something new has been added this year. For the first time the lineup of finalists includes two members of the same family—sisters Angie and Ellege Branch of Houston, Texas.

The contest is sponsored by the National Cotton Council, which announced the finalists, and the cotton exchanges of New York and New Orleans.

Other finalists included: Mississippi: Beverly Guyton, Blue Mountain, Elizabeth Anderson, Sumner; Louisiana: Thompson, Oxford.

Steel output is carried to 100 per cent of capacity.

MISSISSIPPI GI TELLS OF BEING CHINESE PRISONER

San Francisco—A soldier from Mississippi and one from Louisiana told of being prisoners of the Chinese Communists for 21 days in North Korea before being released in an unexpected Red move.

They are Cpl. Samuel C. Odom of Flora, Miss., and Pfc. Timothy Jenkins of Columbia, La.

They were among a group of 11 soldiers who arrived at Seattle and entered Letterman General Hospital. The Americans related how they had been captured by the Chinese Reds when their outfits were surrounded at Unson, 110 miles from the Manchurian border, Nov. 1.

Odom said they were forced to march toward the Manchurian border during the first 10 days as Pows. He said they were within 800 yards of the border when released.

Odom said the Reds forced them to march during the day and lie low at night. "They fed us what they ate... and that was bal," he said. "Yeah, I guess you'd say they gave us enough to eat, but what eating. The meals consisted of tough corn, green barley, and green soup."

He said the Chinese were poorly equipped, armed mostly with old rifles and tommy guns, but that there were a lot of Chinese.

He said the group of Americans did not know the Chinese planned to free them until the night of the 21st. "They told us they would release us the next night," Odom said.

"Sure enough on the night of Nov. 22 they took us in trucks to a point near our own lines and told us to get out and we got."

GETS IDEA FROM MOVIES

Canthessville, Mo.—William L. Godsey, 15-year-old son of a share-cropper, admitted breaking a switch lock and a signal light which caused a Memphis-to-St. Louis train to be wrecked when it hit the switch at 50 miles an hour. The train jumped the rails, killing the engineer and injuring 13 persons. The boy said he got the idea from watching a movie about the notorious Dalton gang, which operated in the mid-West half a century ago.

CYPRESS LOG CUT INTO FIVE 12-FOOT LOGS; FIVE TRUCK LOADS

One hundred and forty-two years before Columbus discovered America, a cypress ball fell into the waters of Black Bayou in what is now Holmes County, Mississippi, and floated to shore. The water receded and the ball disintegrated, scattering its seed in the mud. The next spring one of the seed germinated in the rich soil. Thus a large cypress started its growth.

For the next 500 years the tree grew rapidly and became a giant among its neighbors. At this time disaster struck in the form of high winds which broke the top out of the tree, leaving only a few limbs to support its growth. It is because of this damage and its large size that the tree was missed by loggers time after time. The topped tree grew very slowly and in the next 100 years added only two inches to its diameter.

During the summer of 1950 Billy Vandever, a logger for the J. C. Allen Lumber Company, discovered this giant tree while cutting on the land of Gilbert Booker, a negro farmer in the vicinity of Thornton. The property at one time had been the old Smith estate.

It took Vandever's crew two days to log the tree which was 74 inches at the stump. It was cut into five 12-foot logs and each log was a truck load. A six tractor was used to load the logs onto the truck bed. When the logs were scaled at the mill yard they measured 8,705 board feet, enough lumber to frame two six-room houses.

Booker was paid $87.05 for stumpage on the tree and it cost the Allen Lumber Company $261 to log the tree to the mill. The logs were so large that they had to be blasted into quarters before they could be sawed. They were split in this manner: holes were bored in a straight line every two feet along the length of the log; a quarter stick of dynamite was placed in each hole and they were set off simultaneously with the net result that only slight damage was done to the timber.

Take it from Mr. Allen, "this is the largest tree I have logged during my 40 years in the timber business." It may truthfully be called the last of its kind for it took 600 years for the tree to grow, and with the increasing demand for timber it isn't likely that a tree will be allowed to stand for such a long period of time in the future.

ONE-ARMED BANDIT
Crown Point, Ind.—Five men, three of whom were armed, entered a country club near here and started to steal one of two slot machines. They retreated, weeping in a cloud of tear gas. The "one-armed" bandit had an electrically wired bomb which was set off when the men tried to move it.

HUSBAND-DAUGHTER DIE
SAME DAY
Woodland, Wash.—Learning that her daughter, Mrs. Herman Rudy, had just died in a hospital, Mrs. Charles Wampler drove out to a road project to tell her husband, a construction worker. She arrived at the scene, only to be told that her husband's truck had just been caught in a cave-in and he, too, was dead.

STENNIS GIVES HIS IDEA ON NEW STATE

Washington—Mississippi Sen. John Stennis says "if we need more states let's get them from Texas."

The Democrat in law-maker mood said "comment when he opposed the admission of Alaska as a new state to the Union."

He told his colleagues that the Texas might later occupy half the seaport of American troops in the Gulf. He called the idea a "new Alaska" and said it was "a move to place Alaska in the hands of a new, untried state government" when there "is danger of attack."

Stennis endorsed the stand of Sentor Russell (D-Ga.) who told the senate "if ever there was a time from a military standpoint" when statehood should not be granted to the territories it is now.

TIME IN CHICAGO

Chicago—A visitor to Chicago from Lincoln, Neb., who had not been in Chicago since 1930, entered C. D. Peacock, Inc., to see if they still had a watch he had left there twenty years ago. When the visitor admitted he didn't have a claim ticket, a clerk said he would have a look into it. A few days later, the man, back in his home, received his watch from Peacock's, all nicely cleaned, free of charge.

Farmers and cattle men see an increase in production.

Abundant Forests Keep Paper Industry Rolling

Thickening process in a large paper mill prepares woodpulp for manufacture. Paper is end product of a managed forest.

A century and a half ago Congress appealed to patriotic Americans to save rags for paper manufacturing. The fast-growing new nation needed paper and needed it badly.

Today, however, America's paper industry is the greatest in the world. It produces more than 251 million tons of paper each year, and the United States is the world's largest producer of paper. The industry is a vital part of the nation's economy.

Wood is the raw material of the paper industry. It is the only natural resource that can be used over and over again. The paper industry is a vital part of the nation's economy.

G.M., FORD REFUSE TO HOLD OFF ON PRICE INCREASES

Washington. Refusals by two large automobile manufacturers to hold off announced price increases have clashed head-on with an administration warning that it "can and will roll back prices" if necessary.

General Motors and Ford told the government recently they cannot comply with a request by Alan Valentine, economic stabilization chief, to hold increases set up for their 1951 models.

President C. E. Wilson of General Motors ordered the first of a series of GM price boosts and telegraphed Valentine.

We regret that we find it impractical to accede to your sudden request to withhold or withdraw the reasonable pricing of our new 1951 model automobiles.

Wilson said that the new price tags $60 to $80 higher on Chevrolets are reasonable "considering what has happened to wages and the way raw material prices have skyrocketed with increases ranging from seven per cent to 300 per cent since our 1950 cars were priced."

He pointed out that steel prices were increased recently "by approximately seven per cent and that the government on Dec. 6 raised the price of synthetic rubber."

President Henry Ford II of the Ford Motor Co. telegraphed that "we cannot comply with your request."

Ford said the increases on his company's models—ranging from $87.50 on Fords to $165 on some Lincolns—went into effect all over the country Thursday, Dec. 7.

Valentine had sent telegrams to General Motors, Ford and eight other automobile manufacturers Thursday night. Ford said his company's annual costs since the outbreak of the Korean war last June 25 have gone up more than $100,000,000 on passenger cars and they are still going up.

Earlier in the day the administration had appealed for voluntary help in the fight against inflation.

This appeal was made at a round-robin news conference by Valentine along with his two chief deputies, Price Stabilizer Michael V. DiSalle and Wage Stabilizer Cyrus W. Ching.

All three made it clear that a wage-price freeze, widely rumored this week, is not imminent. However, Valentine said "if voluntary action fails, we could take mandatory action if the situation justifies."

RECLUSE LEAVES $201,424. Pittsburgh N. J. William J. Schell, an elderly bachelor, who lived alone in a ramshackle farmhouse, without any modern conveniences, left a net estate of $201,424.

Schell, 84, who died last January 4, left large bequests to twenty friends and the rest of his estate was left to his sister and only surviving relative Mrs. Ruth M. Stuffer, of Elkhart, Ind.

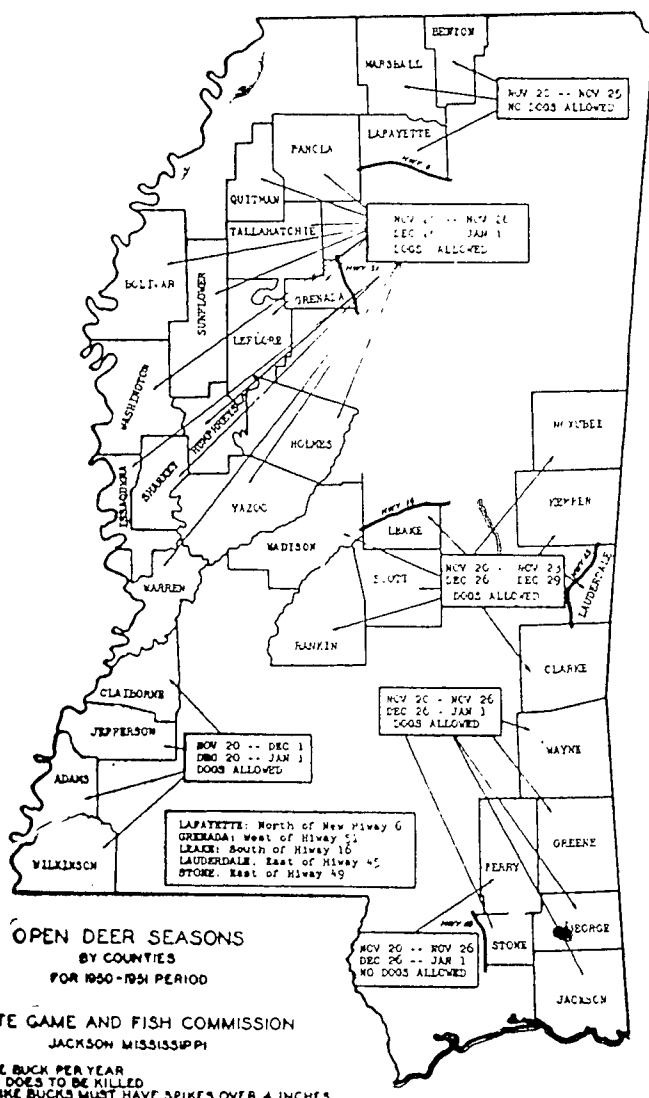

KIN ONLY BY ACCIDENT. Syracuse, N. Y.—In an accident, reported by Patrolman John A. Glavin, Eugene R. Hayes, of Syracuse, stopped his auto for a traffic light and a car driven by William Hayes, of Tully, crashed into it. A third car, operated by Daniel E. Hayes, of Cortland, hit the other two. None of the men were related.

The end of the world may come sooner than we think but we no longer think.

MISSISSIPPIAN GETS JOB AS TRUMAN'S PRESS SECRETARY

Washington. President Truman recently appointed Joseph H. Short, Jr., Washington Star, independent of the Baltimore Sun, as his press secretary.

Joseph H. Short, Jr., who has been acting as press secretary since Charles A. Ross died recently.

Early and he was happy to say that Mr. Truman has chosen Short as his personal secretary.

A former member of the Associated Press Bureau at Richmond, Va., and Washington, Short has been assigned to the Baltimore Sun's Washington Bureau since 1943.

He was born February 11, 1904, at Vicksburg and received his AB degree at Virginia Military Institute, Lexington, Va., in 1925.

He was a reporter for the Jackson Daily News, the Vicksburg Post and Herald and the New Orleans Times-Picayune before joining the Associated Press at Richmond in 1929.

Short left the Associated Press in 1941 to join the Chicago Sun and went with the Baltimore Sun in 1943.

He severed his connection with the Baltimore Sun upon accepting the White House appointment.

ONE FOR THE BOOK. Grand Rapids, Mich.—Library workers have found the following articles used as bookmarkers and returned with library books: a strip of raw bacon, salted cracker, scissors, a rosary, playing cards, coin, receipted bill, picture proofs, wedding invitations, old films, school notes, jewelry, draft card, and a $20 bill.

ALL WET. Madison, Ind.—Just as Judge Harry E. Nichols, in dedicating a fountain in downtown Madison, declared, "Our children and our children's children will play around this fountain," there was a splash. Six-year-old Wayne Sooy, had fallen head-first into the pool while watching the goldfish.

Delusion: The idea that if the US had said a few kind words for Chiang Kai-shek the gentleman would still be master of China.

A LESSON the Newspaper has NEVER FORGOTTEN

Newspapers, even the biggest of them, all started by being close to the interests, wishes and tastes of the people. They all started small, with limited capital, and those that deserved to grow, grew. Newspapers were not started by tremendous aggregations of wealth in New York or Hollywood with an "idea" to put over or sell. And many of the men who are successfully editing or publishing papers today started as boys—as printer's devils—in a country weekly office.

Newspapers have never forgotten that people want to read news about the people they know—their neighbors. In the Daily Herald you will find news of world and national affairs—but you will also find out about the doings and happenings on your own street and the next block.

BAY CENTRAL P-TA MEET TUESDAY IN SCHOOL AUDITORIUM

The regular monthly meeting of the Bay Central P-TA was held Tuesday afternoon at the high school auditorium.

The meeting was called to order by the president Mrs. S. J. Maufrey and Mrs. Clapp led the opening prayer.

The girls chorus, under the direction of Mr. Wimberly sang three hymns. They were well done and very much enjoyed.

Miss Julia Blaize, program chairman, distributed program booklets for the year. The drawings for the book were made by Billy and Bobby Clapp who had done an excellent job. The program has been arranged to carry out the theme of the national program which is "The Child—A World Citizen."

The booklet presents a well-rounded year's program treating the aspect of the child citizen from the physical, mental, moral, and material standpoint. Miss Blaize has developed a program which should be both enjoyable and beneficial to all members.

Three students of the elementary grades gave reports on student activities. Betty Oliver from Mrs. Ashcraft's class said that the Primer had contributed $16.45 for the Crippled Children Fund and had given a basket of food as their Thanksgiving offering. Mildred Parker, from Mrs. Davis' class announced that the First grade had made workshaws from pine cones for their mothers' Thanksgiving and they had been busy preparing and presenting their class play. The children from Webb School were among those in the audience. Paul M. Miller from Miss Saucier's class reported that the Third grade was quite busy with preparations for Christmas and that the Sixth grade will present a Christmas Pageant on Dec. 20 at 8:45 a.m. Parents and friends are all invited.

Mrs. Carrie Davis told a charming story of the first Christmas night which was very much enjoyed.

Mrs. W. W. James gave a very inspirational talk on the character and spiritual education of the child. She said it has become increasingly important that the children be taught to live together with all types of people in a happy, healthy way. She stressed that one of the most effective ways to do this is to surround the child with a sense of being loved.

Mrs. Carl Smith announced that there will be a Christmas Cantata by the High School chorale groups at 10:45 a.m., Tuesday, Dec. 20 in the high school auditorium. Everyone is cordially invited to attend.

The second grade won the attendance award with the count of 9.

The membership present voted unanimously to approve the national legislative program as presented at the last meeting.

It was decided that the classrooms should present Christmas food baskets on the same plan as that of Thanksgiving, under the sponsorship of the P-TA.

The meeting adjourned to the Home Ec. kitchen where cookies and coffee were served.

It was moved by Mrs. Gillespie and seconded by Mrs. Charles Beyer that the executive committee meet after the regular meeting to discuss financial matters.

Yep, it's really beginning to look like Santa Claus time around town, with gay colored lights strung along the business district--Christmas trees making their appearance in private homes--the business places getting all dressed up in colored lights and tinsel--yes sir, the old Xmas spirit is at last showing itself--really makes you feel good--the Hi-Way Drive-In Theatre is having open house and a free Xmas Tree party on Friday, December 22--be sure and go--everyone is invited--next week will be our big Christmas edition--if you haven't been contacted yet for a Christmas adv. and would like one--phone the Eagle office, 265--if you want to help a worthy cause, and have a good time at the same time, go to the KC Hall on Main Street on Thursday night and try your luck--you also may win a Xmas turkey--not a bad idea--the KC's will distribute baskets to the needy again this year as per their usual custom--this is real charity--the kind that does the most good--bringing Christmas cheer and eats to those who need--well where is the bridge going to be?--does anyone know?--if so, we wish they would tell us so we would know--Brother Peter's Xmas Tree at St. Stanislaus will be held two days this year--on the 22nd for the white children and on the 23rd for the colored children--The Fleas and Flies did their part on Sunday toward making this tree possible--the proceeds of their game always goes toward the expenses of this affair--and we certainly want to doff our hats to these tiny mites for doing their part--next week's radio programs will mostly be all about Christmas and boy do we like that--we just love those Christmas carols and stories--always a kid again at this time--probably always will be--nothing like it.

Trifles & Treasures

PEGGY FOOTE

I would surely like, at this moment, to get into a good, roundtable discussion and get everyone's opinion on the mild feud between our President and Paul Hume. I was a little shocked the other night to hear the story, (or rather, I was shocked at the trend of it) from one of our well known commentators on a National hook-up. To begin with some people seem to misunderstand the meaning of "critic." Our friend Noah Webster gives the world scope by supplying three distinct definitions--all of them legitimate. His first is (and we all hope for this sort of critic if we happen to need one) "One who expresses a reasoned opinion on any matter, involving a judgment on its value, truth, or rightness, or an appreciation, of its beauty or technique." No. 2--"One given to harsh or captious judgment; a cavalier or carper." No. 3--"One skilled in judging the merits of literary or artistic works."

Personally, I would place Mr. Hume in the third category concerning his criticism of Miss Truman's ability. I have never heard Miss Truman sing but I understand from those who have that her voice is mediocre. I am not a critic, neither am I in a position to judge her talent or lack of it--the case may be. Therefore, this is definitely not aimed as a criticism against the young lady. But, the thing which startled me was her father's bitter misanthropy and lack of good sportsmanship. It is natural that a parent should try to protect its off-spring from embarrassment, but it is also natural that once the off-spring gets into the limelight that criticism, fair or unfair, is a consequence. It would have been so much "sweeter" if Hume had been lavish in his praise and encouragement but would it have been honest? Mr. Hume (far from seeming like an "ulcerated old man") simply gave his plain, unvarnished, opinion--which, as a critic, he is being paid to do. But, it results in what I have stressed before--that people simply cannot stand to hear the truth about themselves (or their own). It is human nature to love flattery--to want to hear the good and hide the bad--but we be such poor sports about it when we do get an ear-full of unglamorous accounts concerning ourselves? Surely, we should not go around threatening to beat people up for telling, what they consider, the truth. Our Democracy is supposed to afford us the privilege of free speech, but isn't it rather a risk to speak freely if one is threatened with a "flattened nose" for exercising the privilege? Seems to me that Papa defeated his purpose if he was trying to spare humiliation since he succeeded in bringing the incident to the attention of the whole nation. Certainly, Hume proved himself the victor through his magnanimous assertion that "in such a time of crisis a man ought to be indulged in an occasional outburst of temper." Pete Baird, in his "Picayunes" in Sunday's edition sums the whole thing up in his clever, brief quip, "No music critic is needed to tell us that Truman's note was low." (P. S. I have no particular political axe to grind in connection with this wordy observation of name. It is simply written as one's human opinion pitched against another's.)

Dear me! Look at the date and I have not even ordered Christmas cards yet! I've gotten so I hate sending the type card with my name signed in my own handwriting just because it looks just like what it usually is--a hurried afterthought. I wonder if anyone could take my order this late and fill it in time?

Almost all of us appreciate a recipe for a different punch. (Any deviation from the grapefruit juice type is welcome to me.) And, at this time of year, although it may seem a little doubtful, there must be a lot of us who will want punch and welcome it. This one is a little different from any I have used and you might like it.

2 cups orange juice.
1 cup lemon juice.
1 cup sugar syrup.
2 cups cranberry juice.
2 cups apple juice.
1 large bottle gingerale.

Combine ingredients. When ready to serve add gingerale. Garnish with mint springs, orange slices or sliced strawberries, if available.

Do not add dressing to a lettuce salad until just before serving. The oil, salt and acid will wilt the leaves.

Easy quick frosting for a cake is made by whipping 1/2 cup of heavy cream stiff and then adding 2 tbs. of chocolate syrup.

Omission of cream of tartar or corn syrup from boiled frosting causes a dry, sugary crust.

Use strained honey in sweetening whipped cream, rather than sugar. The cream will stay firm all day and have a deliciously different flavor.

Substitute old-fashioned dark brown sugar for sugar mentioned in your favorite recipes for plain muffins.

I am giving you all these suggestions now as they may help you in planning your holiday food. Everyone will be more food-minded than usual pretty soon and these may be a few shortcuts or new ideas.

If Santa Claus can hear me I want two new formal, a fur cape, a glamorous new robe that I can answer the doorbell in and still feel dressed, a new permanent, my silver tea service done over, a french clock, a new car, a maid whose social security I do not have to pay, a trip to Nassau, and my rings re-set, two tickets to "Guys and Dolls" and all that goes with it. (Those, of course, are my "dream gifts." Now what I really want most of all is peace for the whole world, a world so filled with love that there will be no heart-aches--no cruelty; the respect and good will of everyone I know and the understanding of those who don't know me; a quieter heart; a patience with those who misjudge and smudge my every motive; a forgiveness of those who see evil where evil does not exist; a strong mind, a healthy body, a kind heart and--above all--"Himself" at my side for many Christmases to come.

Someone said in my presence the other day "I wish Peggy Foote would give an 'orchid' to little Mrs. Wagner for the splendid job she has done in getting all these celebrities to give their services for our benefit book reviews." So our "orchid" goes to Mrs. Wagner this week. I am sorry I cannot supply her initials or that I am not acquainted with the lady, but it does seem she has done an exceptional job.

EDITOR'S NOTE: The lady referred to is Mrs. Louis Wagner who resides at 431 deMontluzin Avenue.

The chapel was arranged with baskets and sprays of white gladioli and greens. Mrs. Leo P. Blazie, Jr., sister of the bride was matron of honor and Miss Emily Clare Murtagh, the bride's niece served as maid of honor. Lt. Frankiewicz had as his best man Lt. Dan Dalton, and as groomsmen Lt. James DeSkein, both of Barksdale AFB.

The bride was given away by her brother, John A. Scafide. During the mass, Mrs. Paul H. Lagons, a sister of the bride sang Gounod's Ave Maria, the Angles Pan Angelicum, the Lord's Prayer and Teach Me To Pray.

The bride was gown in ivory slipper satin made on simple lines with a softly flared skirt ending in a chapel length train. She wore a fingertip veil of illusion and carried a prayer book and crystal rosary with a spray of gardenias and white carnations.

The dresses of the maid of honor were a bronze and gold taffeta made in a style similar to the brides. They carried bouquets of gold and bronze chrysanthemums.

After the wedding a reception was held at the Starlight Room of the officers club at Barksdale Field, where the AAF orchestra rendered musical selections and Mrs. Lagons sang "I Love You Truly."

The three tiered wedding cake was arranged on a lace covered table decorated with white gladioli and carnations. The bride cut the cake with the groom's sword as is traditional in military weddings.

In the receiving line with the couple in addition to the wedding party were John A. Scafide and Mrs. K. L. Murtagh, brother and sister of the bride and Robert A. Murtagh, her nephew.

After a honeymoon trip to Hot Springs, Arkansas, Bay St. Louis and New Orleans, Port Allen, the bride and groom will make their home in Shreveport, La.

Attending the wedding from Bay St. Louis were Mrs. Charles A. Carter, Mrs. A. A. Scafide, Miss Mary Frances Ave Maria, the Angles Pan Angelicum, and John Scafide.

Mrs. Bee Floyd will accompany her parents, Dr. and Mrs. A. P. Smith on a ten day cruise to Guatemala and Cuba. They will leave Dec. 22 and return to Bay St. Louis on Jan. 2.

Mrs. James R. Parsons, Jr., of Birmingham, Ala., arrived last Friday to spend a week with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Bourgeois on Main Street.

Mrs. Milton J. Bienvenu, Jr., nee Miss Janet Luce, who was married at Pass Christian, November 28.
